FUNERAL OF WILLIAM H. LEWIS

Services Conducted at the Residence—Entertainment in Scranton Street Baptist Church Tonight—Farewell to Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Dale.

The funeral of the late William H. Lewis, who died suddenly on Thursday evening from brain trouble, took place Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from his late home on Bellevue Heights. Services were conducted at the family residence by Rev. M. H. Hill, rector of St. David's Episcopal church, who spoke in glowing terms of the many estimable qualities of the deceased. A very large number was present.

The Bellevue mine accidental fund was in attendance and presented a beautiful floral emblem, of which there were many. Interment was made in the Washburn Street cemetery. The pall bearers were: Thomas Freeman, John H. Williams, William Peary, John Phillips, Lewis Parry and John T. Davies.

Entertainment This Evening.
The Sunday school connected with the Scranton Street Baptist church have arranged a special programme which will be rendered this evening. A feature of the occasion will be a chimney built of paper bricks; each brick will be filled with candy and distributed among the young members, when the affair is concluded. The following numbers will appear on the programme: Recitation, Miss Clara Carpenter; organ solo, Miss Lisa Collins; recitation, George Carpenter; recitation, Louise Schadt; recitation, Arthur Boddy; organ solo, Miss Clara Reed; recitation, Miss Minnie Jones; solo, Miss Lisa Jones. Speeches will be made by Rev. T. J. Collins and B. G. Morgan.

Brief Notes of Interest.
At the Welsh philosophical society on Saturday evening, Ebenezer P. Davies gave a practical criticism on the subject of "Coal Formation." The talk was much enjoyed. William Brock opened the philosophical topic, "Why Is It That Glass Is a Non-Conductor of Heat?" and a conductor of "Solar Heat." Vocal selections were rendered at the opening and close of the meeting.

John Hundon, division superintendent of the Scranton Traction company, placed an extra car on the Elyon and Taylor lines on Saturday at noon. Twenty minute trips were made until midnight. On Christmas Day the same car will leave the central city at 8 o'clock and run throughout the day for accommodation to those at the elevated.

Mr. Hundon states that an entire new schedule will put in on Jan. 1.

Professor M. J. Donohoe, principal of No. 14 school, Fourteenth ward, was presented with a valuable gold pen by the pupils of his department at the Friday afternoon exercises. Mr. Donohoe received the gift by making an appropriate address.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Dale, of North Main avenue, were given a farewell reception on Friday evening at their home by the young men of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal church. Brief addresses were made and games indulged in. Before their departure George Peck, on behalf of the party, presented Mr. and Mrs. Dale with a handsome parlor chair. Mr. Dale responded in a feeling manner.

MUSIC AT THE CHURCHES

Interesting Services That Were Conducted Morning and Evening.

SPECIAL ARRANGEMENTS MADE

Augmented Choirs Rendered the Special Music They Have Been Rehearsing for Some Time Past—Some of the Details of the Various Services.

Christmas music was rendered in most of the churches of this city yesterday, and programmes of an elaborate and appropriate nature were rendered.

At the Penn Avenue Baptist church a special choir of twenty-five voices, under the direction of John T. Watkins, assisted by a large orchestra, rendered a long programme of anthems, including that of St. Joseph Barny, "Before the Heavens Were Spread Abroad."

The solos, duets, trios and quartettes were rendered in an excellent manner by Miss Susie Black, of Nicholson; W. W. Watkins, of Peckville; George W. Hill, of York; Miss Margaret Jones, and Mrs. M. J. Boston Williams.

A carefully selected programme was rendered at the First Presbyterian church in the morning and evening. In the morning Miss Annette Reynolds, the excellent soloist, sang "The Infant King," and Miss Lydia Saller, "The Midnight Song." Miss Gertrude H. French played several selections on the harp, accompanied by Miss Richmond on the organ, and Miss Mauser, of Boston, on the violin. In the evening an exhaustive programme of splendid music was performed, the Chorus choir acquitting itself with remarkable skill. Miss Annette Reynolds sang "The Dawn of Hope," D. C. Richards gave a splendid rendition of "The Watchful Shepherd." Messrs. Bowen and Richards were very effective in the duet, "The Children's Hosannas." Talie Morgan was chorister.

Green Ridge Presbyterian Church.
At the Green Ridge Presbyterian church the anthem, "Brightest and Best," was rendered, the solo being taken by Mrs. A. A. Hay. The other soloists were J. C. Wink, Miss E. J. Garrison and W. H. Becker, who acquitted themselves with merit. Professor Charles F. Whittemore directed, and Miss Salome M. Becker was organist.

The choir of the Scranton Street Baptist church rendered special music throughout the day, and earned the thanks of the pastor and church officers for their good work. In the morning the anthems, "I Will Extol Thee" and "Christ Is Born in Bethlehem" were sung with good effect and with much feeling, as directed by Miss Lisa Jones, assisted by Miss Virginia S. H. Grady, on Chestnut street, is improving.

HER HEALTH BROKEN DOWN

Miss Laura Boice Has Gone to Philadelphia to Recuperate.

RUMOR THAT SHE WILL RESIGN

It Could Not Be Verified Yesterday—She Thinks an Injustice Has Been Done Her in Reinstating Pupils Pending an Investigation.

Broken in health and quite unnerfed by the controversies following the dismissal of a number of pupils from the training school, Miss Laura Boice, the principal, left on Saturday for Philadelphia, where she will remain with friends until the schools open on Jan. 2.

Miss Boice has at the residence of Colonel Hoffman, 1019 Mulberry street, and the members of the household were very much concerned about the teacher's health during the recent trouble. The action of the board of control on Friday's meeting in reinstating the dismissed scholars was considered by Miss Boice as a condemnation of her act and troubled her greatly. In speaking of the trouble to a Tribune reporter a friend of Miss Boice said last night:

"Miss Boice was worried over the notoriety she attained, but the action of the school controllers worried her still more, and in a measure annoyed her. While she would have approved of a more minute investigation than was really given the case, she felt that the reinstating of the scholars preceding such an investigation was a serious reflection upon herself. Superintendent Phillips told Miss Boice that her action would in all probability be modified by the school board, but she was entirely unprepared for the sweeping disposition of the case."

Inquiry does not reveal any opinion that Miss Boice is incompetent as a teacher; on the contrary she is considered a very bright and well read woman. She is criticised by some of the controllers for making use of methods too personal and too exacting. A rumor that she will resign her position could not be verified.

IN LOCAL THEATERS.
This evening the Cornell Glee and Band clubs will give their concert at the Frothingham. The sale of seats promises a large and cultivated audience tonight. A programme that is delightful in its variety has been arranged. After the concert the members of the clubs will be tendered a reception at the Hotel Terrace by the members of the Cornell Alumni association of the county.

At the Academy of Music Christmas afternoon and evening a brand new farce comedy, "A Run on the Bank," will be produced for the first time in this city. It was written for John Ward and Harry Vokes, who have long been known for their highly amusing work as Harold and Percy in the best grade of vaudeville houses, and this is their first appearance as joint dramatic stars. In "A Run on the Bank" they appear as two impecunious but nifty individuals, who, accidentally securing the credentials of two noblemen, pass themselves off as Lord Percy and Baron Harold de Carter. The dialogue is credited with being bright, the scenes and situations original and comical and the specialties novel and numerous.

The attraction at the Frothingham on Christmas afternoon and night will be Marie Jansen in her highly successful comedy, "Delmonico's Six," which takes its name from the fact that one of its acts transpires in the private dining room of the celebrated restaurant. The company supporting her this season is one of the best, and includes such well known artists as Frederick Bond, Will Mandeville, William Norris, Charles Mason, Fred Peters, Solene Powell, Grace Huntington, Hope Ross and Annie Shindle.

Rhea, who is always a welcome visitor to Scranton, will appear Wednesday evening at the Academy of Music in a powerful dramatic version of Wilkie Collins' famous novel, "The New Magdalen." This book in its day created quite as much excitement as any sensational modern novel and was the cause of much controversy between people of various religious beliefs or of no belief whatever. Collins' treatment of his theme was considered bold, daring and original.

It is questionable whether realism has not attained its highest ground in the latest great melodrama, "On the Tenderloin," which will be at the Frothingham next Thursday evening. It is the work of the eminent lawyer-author, Edmund E. Price, who has been associated in a legal capacity with the many scenes of New York night life, which he introduces with such startling effect. The cast of characters is headed by Frederick Bryton as Jack Forrester, while to add to the realism the management has engaged Tom Gould and the Lexow witness, George Appo, to appear respectively in the reproductions of their old haunts—the Sans Souci Concert hall and the great green goods scene. The sale of seats will open at the Frothingham box office tomorrow morning.

Chauncey Olett will appear at the Academy of Music Thursday night in "The Irish Artist," his new play. In this play the delineation of Irish character is developed in an unconventional way. There are no vedettes, no hand sharps, no process serving menials. The story is simple though filled with counter incidents that give a great deal
